

Sweet Success for Snickers

Marty Sheehan

Remember me? Shy, little Snickers (formerly Stinger). Thanks to my human sister Devin I have a name that is as sweet as I am. (That's what my mommy says.) I just wanted to check in with everyone to say thanks for finding me a great home. It's been almost a year now. My mommy says I am the best little dog in the whole wide world and we are inseparable. I have a nice fluffy and warm dog bed I can sleep on whenever I want to in addition to three couches, two beds and a crate. I have a really cool older sister dog who shows me the ropes and teaches me that it's ok here. (Don't tell her, but she is kinda funny looking, her ears are straight and pointy. She is the silliest looking beagle I ever saw. Mommy even calls her collie sometimes.) I am still a little shy of my Dad but I will let him pet me in the car and outside and I will take treats out of his hand. I have also learned how to do some tricks. I can shake hands, sit pretty for treats on two legs and know how to stay on my dog bed until mommy says its ok to eat my snack. I have really come a long way since my BREW days and I have you to thank for it. Who knows where I would be? My mommy hugs me everyday and tells me I am safe and sound. My favorite part of the day is my evening walk w/ mommy. Then I get to come home, have my treat, cuddle w/ mommy in the big bed and off to bed for me. I need lots of rest because I am so busy all day long. Thank you BREW and everyone who helped along the way. I am safe and happy and getting more confident everyday.

Doggie Hugs and Doggie Kisses,

Snickers Sheehan